Help for stray cats

The suffering of stray cats has become one of the biggest animal welfare problems in recent years – millions of cats in Europe live on the streets. Every single day they have to fight for their survival. They starve, no one cares about their injuries and they often suffer from parasites and infectious diseases. Every single stray cat originally comes from a domestic cat that was not neutered and was therefore able to reproduce uncontrollably outdoors.

Here's how everyone can help strays:

- ✔ Neuter your cat! Neutering female and male cats is a routine procedure and has advantages for your own cat and street cats.
- ✔ Register your cat at a pet register in your country. Because even indoor cats can escape, it makes sense to neuter, identify and register them as well.
- ✔ Volunteer at your local animal welfare organisation or animal shelter and support their work.
- ✔ Every donation towards your local animal welfare organisation can make the difference.
- ✔ Use your social media channels to draw the attention of as many people as possible to the issue. → #helpthestrays
- ✔ Ready for a pet? Then the best place to start your search is the animal shelter – there are numerous lovely cats waiting for a new home.
